INTRODUCTION

The Revolutionary War Pension and Bounty Land Warrant Applications in the National Archives fill 2,670 microfilm reels. These applications contain a tremendous treasure of genealogical information and very little of this information has been compiled and published. To illustrate how huge this bank of genealogical data is, take a look at the index to this book. There are 1,900 names abstracted from just the ten reels of applicants whose surname is White!

There are 344 applicants and over 10,000 pages on these ten reels, so it was necessary to establish a format for recording the information in a consistent manner for each individual and in the most concise way possible. The result is an outline for each applicant with the genealogical information presented in the same order for each, using a minimum of words and punctuation.

It is interesting to discover that veterans who could substantiate their service with discharge papers or other proof of their eligibility for a pension when filing their applications had no reason to mention family names; therefore their files usually yield almost no genealogical data. If the applicant had to furnish additional proof or was a widow who had to prove both her husband's service and her marriage, the documents will generally be much more rewarding, as will the files of those whose applications were rejected. Some of the pensioner's files have only one page. These bear dates prior to 1800. There was a fire in the War Department on November 8th of that year and apparently all records in the custody of that department were burned.

The data in this book have been abstracted as carefully and accurately as possible but it must be remembered that many of the applicants were aged and infirm, so their recollections of events far in the past may not have been entirely accurate. The multitude of handwriting styles frequently presented a challenge, especially if the ink was faded or blurred, and on occasion the spelling was also a problem. No military data were extracted nor were the names of military personnel under whom or with whom the applicant served unless they had the same surname as any family members mentioned in the file papers. Likewise, names of Judges, Clerks of Court or witnesses to documents were not abstracted unless the surname was White or there appeared to be some relationship to the family.

The names of the applicants are in alphabetical order as they appear on the reels. When two or more veterans have the same given name, they will be found listed in alphabetical order by the states for which they served. This designation follows the name in the bold type heading, i.e.:

#34 CHARLES WHITE -MA #W2469 BLW 3636-160-55 SR: 22 pgs NSR: 32 pgs

The number following the state in the heading is the pension application number. If the number is preceeded by the letter S, indicating "Survivor", the veteran obtained his pension; if preceeded by the letter W, a widow's pension is indicated. The veteran may have received a pension up to his death and the widow applied later when a change in the laws made the pension available to her, or her husband may have died before being eligible for a pension and she was the original applicant. The letter R preceeding a number indicates a rejected application. Rejection came for various reasons, among which could be insufficient length of service, inability to prove service, and in the widow's situation it may have been inability to prove marriage or marriage date. A widow's application may have been rejected even though her husband had received a pension when living. If a Bounty Land Warrant was obtained, the warrant number follows the pension number in the heading. The abbreviations SR and NSR signify "Selected Records" and "Non-selected Records". The Pension Office selected the papers containing the most genealogical information (usually not more than 20 pages) and grouped them at the beginning of the soldier's file. These are the ones furnished if application is made to the National Archives for a copy of the veteran's file. The remaining records are in the Non-selected group and can also be obtained from the Archives but have to be specifically requested and an additional fee paid.

The categories selected for recording the genealogical data from each applicant's file are arranged to give researchers a quick but complete summary. However, an explanation concerning the information abstracted in certain of the categories is provided for clarification:

Born: If the date is not given in the file, but the veteran states in his application he was 79 in 1832, the entry will read "ca 1753 (79 in 1832)".

Resided: This category is used only if the applicant gave dates he moved to or from any of the places mentioned elsewhere, or if additional localities were specified. The applicant and his family may have lived in areas other than those mentioned in his file.

Occupation: Infrequently mentioned in pension papers, occupations have been abstracted only when they were a specialized craft, such as cooper or gunsmith.

Wife's name: Applicant may have been married even though no reference is made to a wife; or the wife named may have been the second or even the third wife, with no reference to previous spouses.

Widow resided: These are locations where she resided after husband's death, if different from those previously recorded.

Children: The absence of children's names does not mean the couple had none. Where names are given, they may not constitute the entire family.

Affidavit(s): When persons who made affidavits had the surname White or were apparently connected to the family in some manner, their names were abstracted, with date of affidavit.

Inquiries: From about 1890 until 1940, the Pension Office placed in the veteran's file copies of letters received requesting information about the soldier or his military record, as well as a copy of the Pension Office reply. The inquirers were usually descendants and their names and addresses could provide clues for researchers. In some instances they identified their relationship, in others they may have said they were a descendant. Not all persons making requests were related, and when the same name appears in numerous files it has been omitted as have the names of professional genealogists and officers of DAR and SAR Chapters.

DAR Patriot Index: If the DAR Patriot Index contains birth, death or spouse data not appearing in the applicant's file, that information is entered here.

Researchers should also note that locations are those given in the pension papers and in some instances the names of localities may have changed or boundary lines relocated. When an entry reads: "New Windsor (now Cornwall) NY", the word "now" means in 1832, the date of the application in this instance.

Researchers who find they have a Revolutionary War pensioner in their ancestry will undoubtedly want a copy of his record. There were numerous changes in the pension laws, but the two major ones occurred in 1818 when pensions became available for those in need of financial assistance even if not disabled, and in 1832 when all veterans who had served more than six months were eligible. If he filed in 1818, the applicant usually stated the persons who were dependant upon him, and was required to provide a list of his property. The latter was sometimes so pitifully small it may have consisted of a few pots and pans, a couple of chairs, perhaps a cow and one or two small tools. The veterans who were not eligible for pension until the 1832 legislation had been in better financial condition than the earlier applicants, or in a few instances, too proud to ask for help. Obviously, those who survived to 1832 had lived a long time. Their signatures, sometimes just an "X", were usually shakey but when you look at papers they once held these patriots suddenly become much more "real" than just names appearing in this book.

To obtain copies of a Revolutionary War veteran's records, request NATF Form 80 from

Reference Services Branch (NNIR)
National Archives and Records Administration
7th and Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20408

The form contains complete instructions for ordering. Anyone residing near a library participating in inter-library loan can ask the library to order the microfilm reel containing the desired record. If a reader/printer is available, copies can be made from the microfilm of any or all papers in a veteran's file.

A BRIEF SUMMARY: REVOLUTIONARY WAR PENSION LEGISLATION

AUG. 1776: First legislation for colonies as a group. Half pay for officers and enlisted men disabled and unable to earn a living, to continue for the duration of the disability.

MAY 1778: Half pay for 7 years after conclusion of war to all military officers who remained in the Continental service to the end of the war. Enlisted men to receive a gratuity of $80.

AUG. 1780: Half pay for 7 years to widows and orphans of men who met requirements of 1778 resolution.

OCT. 1780: Resolution of 1778 was amended to half pay for life for officers after the war, but in March 1783 this was changed to full pay for 5 years.

SEPT. 1789: 1st Congress of US passed resolution that disability pensions previously paid by the states pursuant to resolutions of the Continental Congress should be continued and paid by the US for one year. Subsequent legislation often extended the time limit.

MARCH 1792: Act of Congress permitted veterans not already receiving disability pensions to apply directly to the federal government.

At various dates a few private acts were passed concerning specific individuals whose special services or circumstances merited consideration, but who could not be awarded pensions under existing public acts.

APRIL 1806: Earlier disability pension laws pertaining to Revolutionary War servicemen were extended to make veterans of State troops and militia service eligible for Federal pensions. The act superseded all previous Revolutionary War disability pension legislation.

With the exception of the Continental Congress resolution of 1778 granting half pay to officers for service alone, only disability or death was the basis for pension award.

MARCH 1818: Pensions were granted to Revolutionary War veterans for service from which no disabilities resulted. Officers and enlisted men in need of assistance were eligible under the terms of the 1818 act if they had served in a Continental Military organization or in the US Naval Service or Marines for 9 months or until the end of the war. Pensions granted under this act were to continue for life.

Belief that many were feigning poverty to obtain benefits under the 1818 Act caused Congress to enact a remedial act requiring every pensioner and would-be pensioner under the 1818 act to submit a certified schedule of his estate and income to the Secretary of War, who could remove from the pension list those, in his opinion, not in need of assistance. Another act in 1823 restored pensions to those who subsequently proved their need for aid.

MAY 1828: Congress granted full pay for life to surviving officers and enlisted men of the Revolutionary War who were eligible for benefits under the Continental Congress Resolution of May 1778, as amended.

JUNE 7, 1832: Last and most liberal of the service-pension acts benefiting Revolutionary War veterans, extended to more persons the provisions of the law of May 1828. The Act provided that every officer and enlisted man who had served at least 2 years in the Continental Line or State troops, volunteers or militia, was eligible for a pension of full pay for life. Naval and Marine officers and enlisted men were included. Veterans who had served less than 2 years but not less than six months were eligible for pensions of less than full pay. Under the 1832 Act, money due from the last payment until the death of a pensioner could be collected by his widow or his children.

JULY 1836: Some widows of Revolutionary War veterans were again permitted to apply for pensions. The act provided that the widow of any veteran who had performed service as specified in the pension act of June 1832 was eligible to receive the pension that might have been allowed the veteran, if the widow had married the veteran before the expiration of his last period of service.

JULY 1838: Five-year pensions were granted to widows whose marriages had taken place before Jan. 1, 1794, These pensions were continued by acts of March 1843, June 1844 and Feb. 1848.

JULY 1848: Congress provided life pensions for widows of veterans who were married before Jan. 2, 1800. All restrictions as to date of marriage were removed by acts of February 1853 and February 1855.

MARCH 1878: Widows of Revolutionary War soldiers who had served as little as 14 days or were in any engagement were declared eligible for life pensions.

A BRIEF SUMMARY: BOUNTY LAND WARRANT LEGISLATION

Bounty land warrants - rights to free land in the public domain

SEPT. 1776: Officers and soldiers who had engaged in military service and served to the end of the war, also representatives of officers and soldiers who might be slain by the enemy were entitled to land: soldiers and non-commissioned officers: 100 acres; ensign: to 150 acres; lieutenant: to 200 acres; other officers in proportionate amounts up to 500 acres of land for a colonel.

AUG 1780: Provision extended to generals: brigadier general: 850 acres; major general: 1100 acres. The 1776 and 1780 legislation remained the basic law until 1855.

MARCH 1855: Congress authorized warrants of 160 acres to soldiers regardless of rank, who had served for as few as 14 days in the Revolution or had taken part in any battle. Widows and minor children of such veterans were also eligible. If an earlier warrant had been claimed, the second warrant could be only for the difference between the amount previously received and 160 acres.

MAY 1856: The act of 1855 was extended to Revolutionary War naval and marine officers, enlisted men, their widows and minor children.

White Family Genealogical Abstracts from Revolutionary War Pensions

Elnore White Farquhar

The Revolutionary War Pension and Bounty Land Warrant Applications in the National Archives are a vast genealogical resource comprising 2,670 reels of microfilm. The files are arranged in a master alphabetical order by the name of the soldier. The ten reels covering the surname "White" alone contain 10,000 pages in some 344 files. Those 344 files of White family applicants are here fully abstracted for the benefit of genealogical and historical researchers. Nearly 2,000 people are named (many not having the surname White), and many family relationships are established. The exact source of each file is specified, and instructions are given for acquiring photocopies of the complete files. This resource should be a boon to people researching White families throughout the American colonies.
